Tell Postmaster if You See Locust

Government Anxious to Keep Close Tab on Seventeen-Year Gadabout.

Has anybody here seen a seventeen-year locust? Keep your eye peeled, and if you see one of these rare insects catch it if you can. If you can't lay hands on the locust, hurry and tell Postmaster Edgar Allan, Jr.

Mr. Allan doesn't care much about the locusts himself, nor is he especially anxious to see one, but Uncle Sam wants to keep tab on these visitors. The United States Department of Agriculture, by the Bureau of Entomology, has written the postmaster at Richmond to watch out for the locusts and furnish any information that may be obtained regarding them.

L. O. Howard, chief of the Bureau of Entomology, at Washington, has written Mr. Allan requesting that he communicate with the former should locusts be discovered. These rare insects are supposed to flock to the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, Louisiana, Mississippi and Indiana.

There are said to be two broods known as the seventeen-year locusts or periodical "locusts" (Tribes septendecim L.) one of seventeen-year (septendecim) race and of the thirteen-year (tredecim) race, which will make their appearance in different parts of the country this summer. It is not stated whence the visitors come nor how long they stay or where they go.

The territory in Virginia where the locusts are supposed to arrive is as follows: Virginia, from Petersburg, Dinwiddie county, to the southern line of the State; Bedford, King William,

New Kent and Rockbridge counties; Valley, from the Potomac to the Tennessee and North Carolina line.

Assistant Postmaster Fjeller has taken the matter in hand, and if there are any signs of the locusts in this neck of the woods he will discover them.

TIMES-DISPATCH TO FLASH NEWS

Mammoth Bulletin Board to Give Quick Returns From Prize Fight.

MEGAPHONE SERVICE, TOO

Special Board to Be Placed on Bank Street Side for Crowds in Capitol Square.

Because of the tremendous amount of interest in the forthcoming fight between Jeffries and Johnson at Reno on July 4, The Times-Dispatch has arranged to give the public immediate returns from the ringside by means of an unusual bulletin and megaphone service. The battle is expected to begin about 4:30 P. M. Eastern time, 1:30 Reno time having been fixed yesterday. But it is expected to be decided before dark, and that fact makes it impossible to give the returns through a powerful lantern.

A mammoth bulletin board will be erected on the Bank Street side of The Times-Dispatch Building. An expert will be engaged to write a good account of each round, which will be pasted on the board. The other rounds will be placed alongside of it, so that persons arriving late may have a correct idea of the contest from start to finish.

In Big, Black Type. In addition, there will be a supplemental service by megaphone. The bulletins, however, will be in type large enough for the crowds congregated in Capitol Square. The Bank Street side was selected because of the shade, so that the crowds will not be forced to stand in the hot sun.

The story of the fight will be sent from the ringside at Reno over the Associated Press leased wires and a special wire direct to the editorial offices of The Times-Dispatch. Each round will be instantly delivered to the bulletin board artist, who will display the details, and a man with a megaphone will scream the important details possibly before the returns can be transcribed. The display promises to be the best ever provided by this newspaper. From the interest locally in the bout it is expected that thousands of holiday folk will watch the board, prepared to get the quickest and most reliable news from the ringside. Every effort will be put forth to give the public the news almost the moment after it is flashed from the big sporting city in Nevada.

OPEN NEW BANK

Handsome Building Owned Entirely by Colored People.

The Mechanics' Savings Bank, a well-known colored institution, opened the doors of its new four-story bank building at the corner of Third and Clay Streets yesterday morning. Formal exercises were held just before the opening hour of the bank for business, when a delegation presented a loving cup to the president and founder, John Mitchell, Jr. Prayer was offered by Rev. A. S. Thomas and the presentation address was made by Rev. R. H. Bowling, of Norfolk. President Mitchell responded.

A number of white citizens took occasion to commend the energy and skill with which the colored promoters have pushed the bank and erected a handsome building. In acknowledgment of the friendly spirit shown by members of the white race, and especially by white bankers, the directors have arranged to open the new building for the inspection of white people. The building is the first large business house on Clay Street, and is said to be one of the handsomest banking houses owned entirely by negroes in the country.

With Many Concerns. Mr. Morris is a member of the wholesale boot and shoe firm of Fleishman, Morris & Company; he is a member of the executive committee of the Virginia Trust Company, a member of the board of trustees of the University College of Medicine, and was largely instrumental in raising the fund for the rehabilitation of that great institution. He is also president of the Police Benevolent Association and the Henrico County and is director and vice-president of the Ex-Prisoners' Aid Society. He is identified with many business and civic organizations, and has long taken a keen and personal interest in the upbuilding and welfare of Richmond.

MORRIS ELECTED BANK PRESIDENT

Directors of Savings Bank of Richmond Name Him to Succeed Dr. Patterson.

LONG ITS ACTIVE SPIRIT

Former President of Chamber of Commerce and Leader in Business World.

L. Z. MORRIS.

Directors of the Savings Bank of Richmond, at a meeting held yesterday morning, elected L. Z. Morris, president, to succeed Dr. L. A. Patterson. Mr. Morris has been vice-president since the organization of the bank in 1888, and has virtually directed its business during that period. Acting on a petition presented by members of his family, Judge Scott, of the Henrico Circuit Court, appointed the Virginia Trust Company committee to take charge of Dr. Patterson's estate, and because of this act it became necessary under the law for the directors to declare his position as president of the bank vacant.

The Savings Bank of Richmond has been remarkably successful ever since it started. It was the pioneer institution to encourage small savings, being the first local bank to advertise that sums of $1 and upwards would be accepted for deposit, and has thus built up a large business, having paid out in interest to depositors more than half a million dollars, practically all of which went to people of limited incomes. Mr. Morris's services have been recognized by the board of directors, and he was the logical choice for president in name, having been president in fact without the title.

Long Prominent Here. During the past twenty years Mr. Morris has held many positions of honor and prominence. He was president of the Chamber of Commerce at the time when some of the most important projects for the improvement of Richmond were under way. During the administration of the movement for the erection of a new post-office was inaugurated. He was one of the leaders as president of the chamber of commerce, and was largely instrumental in the improvement of the policy to give $5,000,000 for the improvement of the James River, and while a night is made every year, it is committed on the subject of the $5,000,000 appropriation. Perhaps the greatest work carried on by Mr. Morris was the raising of the fund for the rehabilitation of the University College of Medicine, and was largely instrumental in raising the fund for the rehabilitation of that great institution. It has been estimated that by this work a sum equal to $10,000 was saved.

With Many Concerns. Mr. Morris is a member of the wholesale boot and shoe firm of Fleishman, Morris & Company; he is a member of the executive committee of the Virginia Trust Company, a member of the board of trustees of the University College of Medicine, and was largely instrumental in raising the fund for the rehabilitation of that great institution. He is also president of the Police Benevolent Association and the Henrico County and is director and vice-president of the Ex-Prisoners' Aid Society. W. R. Johnston Made President at Annual Meeting of Members.

The annual meeting of the members of the Richmond Grain Exchange for election of officers and directors for the ensuing year was held in the rooms of the exchange yesterday morning. The president of the exchange, John R. Cary, presided. Messrs. B. Lorraine, Edward Alvey and W. F. Richardson, Jr., were appointed inspectors of election, who certified the following duly elected to serve for the term ending June 30, 1911: President, W. R. Johnston; Vice-President, C. W. Wingfield. Board of directors—George D. Mayo, W. C. Bentley, R. L. Chenery, W. C. Todd, J. E. Cox, John F. Jacob, N. R. Savage, John R. Cary and S. T. Beveridge.

JANITOR SULLIVAN DIES AT WORK

Death Comes on First Day of Employment at City Hall.

Twenty-five minutes before he was to leave his work and go home, T. J. Sullivan, of 723 North Ninth Street, a janitor in the City Hall, dropped dead in the second floor of the Hall at 10:35 o'clock last night. Policemen Smith and Bryant, of the First District, hurried to the scene immediately upon notification, and Coroner Taylor was summoned. The coroner made a cursory examination of the body, learning some of the antecedents of the dead man, and saw at once that death was due to natural causes. An inquest will be unnecessary.

Mr. Sullivan was sixty-three years old. For thirty-five years he was employed by Purcell, Ladd & Company, wholesale druggists, and when that firm went out of business he applied for a position as janitor in the City Hall. He received his appointment two weeks ago. But illness had prevented him from working during the first week, and yesterday was the first day he had been actively employed. It is supposed that his work and the excitement of entering upon his new position had something to do with the brain disease which is said to have affected him for some time.

Mrs. Virginia Rutherford, Victim of Negro's Rage, Resting Quietly.

The case against Julius Booker, of North Eighteenth Street, who is charged with feloniously assaulting Mrs. Virginia Rutherford, white, of 201 East Leigh Street, who spent a night and day in the negro's house, was continued in the Police Court yesterday morning to July 8.

Mrs. Rutherford, who went to the negro's house to ask for lodging and refuse, it is said, was severely assaulted and bitterly by the negro, and then hurried down a flight of stairs to the street door, where she fell unconscious. She is alleged to have spent the night in the same room with Booker and his wife, sleeping on a couch.

She was reported yesterday to be resting quietly in the City Hospital, but was unable to appear in court against her assailant.

CAPTAIN EPPS LOSES SUIT

Jury Decides Street Car Company Was Not to Blame.

Judgment was entered yesterday in the Law and Equity Court in favor of the defendant in the suit of Police Captain George W. Epps against the receivers of the Richmond Traction Company. Captain Epps brought suit for damages in the sum of $10,000 for injuries received by a fall from a street car in 1908. He had stepped from a platform to the car and was suddenly as he was getting back on, throwing him heavily to the pavement. The street car company not liable, as negligence on the part of the employees of the car company was not proved.

SEARCHERS FAIL TO FIND BODIES

Carnegie Hero Medal Suggested for Earl Nicholas, Who Rescued Meyer Cohen.

The bodies of Maxie and Sidney Cohen, ten and eight years old, respectively, who were drowned in the James River at the foot of Twelfth Street Sunday afternoon, had not been recovered up to a late hour last night, and hope of recovering them before they rise to the surface naturally seems to have been practically abandoned.

Searchers were at work yesterday morning and early in the afternoon, and, finding that their efforts were unavailing, they desisted. It is said to be impossible to recover the two little bodies in the current running from the power house of the Virginia Railway and Power Company, as they are still there—unless the power is cut off. The plant was not cut off during the day or Sunday.

It is thought that the bodies may be lodged against the base of one of the pillars of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company's viaduct, which runs overhead, or against one of the fish traps, which are close beneath the bridge of the Southern Railway. But the current there is so swift that divers have practically no chance, and grappling hooks are equally futile.

It has been suggested that Earl Nicholas, the fifteen-year-old boy who rescued Meyer Cohen, the father of the two drowned boys, would be a proper recipient of a Carnegie Hero Medal, and it is learned that efforts to that end will be made. Earl climbed down a precipitous wall by means of a slender wire rope, and, braving the strong current, swam out to where Mr. Cohen had lodged on a fish trap, about twenty feet from shore. His head was still in water, and had it not been for the boy's daring, Mr. Cohen, too, would undoubtedly have been drowned.

SNATCHED HER PURSE

Mrs. R. L. Dodson Robbed of Handbag Containing Money and Valuable Papers.

While hurrying to catch a car at Broad and Allison Streets, Mrs. R. L. Dodson, of 2024 Stuart Avenue, had her handbag, containing money and valuable papers, snatched from her yesterday morning. The negro grabbed his prize and escaped.

As Mrs. Dodson neared Broad Street and quickened her steps, the negro also quickened his pace, and as she ran he followed. Just as she was signaling the car to stop the man grabbed her handbag and fled.

Police headquarters was soon notified of the theft, and detectives were put to work on the case. But the thief had not been apprehended up to a late hour last night.
